DELAWARE OFFERS STATEWIDE SPEED SURVEY AND SPEED TEST

Information gathered will be used to address broadband challenges

DOVER, Del. — In an effort to improve broadband services across the entire state, the Delaware Department of Technology and Information (DTI) is partnering with CTC Technology and Energy to conduct a statewide speed survey. Over the next 45 days residents can visit SpeedSurvey.Delaware.gov to test the speed of their computers, tablets and smart phones or to report a lack of service. Persons without access to internet service can also report that information by calling (302) 739-9701.

> "Having reliable and affordable access to the internet is as essential now more than ever — for education, work, healthcare, and the list goes on," said Acting CIO Jason Clarke. "As we move forward to eliminate broadband deserts throughout the state, we need to be working with the most accurate data possible. The more people who participate in this speed test or report lack of internet availability, the more real-time information we have to make educated, strategic decisions that best serve Delaware."

This information will be used to develop a statewide strategic plan to address rural and urban broadband challenges. For more information about the State of Delaware's broadband efforts, please visit broadband.delaware.gov.
